Walter Watson Rollers

A Game Changer for Sandy Fleming

We interviewed Mark and his son Sandy Fleming from Kairoma Farm in Culverden, North Canterbury to see how the Walter Watson Rollers have been a game changer for them.

Sandy runs a well-established Dairy and Stock operation with 630 Hectares of worked farm, 400 Hectares of that being Dairy farm with 1100 cows and the other 230 hectares with 500 dry stock.

Here is what Sandy has to say about how the Walter Watson rollers have saved them time and money and leaving them with a highly compacted and leveled finish.

"After doing some research and speaking to my local territory manager, Ryan Bassett from NC Equipment, we decided to purchase the Walter Watson Rollers because of the 24-Inch rings and breaker rings. These reduce the soil stick leaving a superb compacted finished ground."

I knew for a fact that I was not going for 20 inch rings which are just tiny. With the smaller ring if you get a rock it tends to bulldoze it, whereas with the 24 inch rings, it rolls straight over it.

Another advantage of the Walter Watson Rollers is the Paddle Boards. These fold backward and forwards constantly grabbing the soil and pushing it along, working the ground all while leveling the paddock. The soil is then pushed between the heavy-duty rollers compacting it which in turn gives it the beautiful finish.

"This is something we use often, essentially you are doing away with your harrows; the paddle boards are doing the work of your harrows which disturb the soil and help with leveling the paddock."

Essentially you are doing away with your harrows; the paddle boards are doing the work of your harrows which disturb the soil and help with leveling the paddock.

I knew for a fact that I was not going for 20 inch rings which are just tiny. With the smaller ring if you get a rock it tends to bulldoze it, whereas with the 24 inch rings, it rolls straight over it.

Back in the day it used to be the Cambridge roller and your harrows on the front. Now it's all in one machine with your paddle boards on the front and the roller at the back which makes it a lot easier. This being a significant advantage.

The heavy 5 tonne weight leaves a great compacted paddock. We are also able to put it in float which leaves an even weight distribution throughout the whole machine and provides great contour follow-up in your paddock.

Effectively we have halved our time on the tractor seat saving a significant amount in time, fuel and the running costs of our tractors.

"Before the Walter Watson Roller, we owned a 3m Roller, so effectively we have halved our time on the tractor seat saving a significant amount in time, fuel and the running costs of our tractors."

The quality of the Walter Watson Rollers is good as it is made of heavy-duty steel. The oversized pivot pins and greaseable bushes at every pivot point have helped us in reducing maintenance costs.

"We love the quick and easy fold-up. 3m Transporting width is great for driving up and down the road. The roller also has hydraulic brakes on the wheels which help on the steep country hills."

I would most definitely recommend the Walter Watson Rollers as it is excellent value for money, we are happy with our decision to purchase this valuable piece of machinery.

We have worked with NC Equipment on many occasions and they have been great. They answered all the questions we had and on delivery John Bassett assisted us with the setup, ensuring we were well equipped and understood exactly how to run the Walter Watson Rollers. It has been a pleasure working with NC Equipment.

Bale Baron

Tullochs / Krone Conference

On the 7th May we (Allan McLean, Mark Bassett and Jim Bassett) were fortunate to be able to attend the Krone NZ conference to mark the 50th anniversary of the Krone brand in New Zealand.

Like always, a lot of the insight that came out of this conference was from hearing directly from the Krone family representatives from Germany. After dealing with the brand predominantly in balers and mowers through NC Equipment, the quality and ingenuity of design has always intrigued us.

Not only are they passionate about their products, but they're also market leaders in farming technology, innovation and continuous improvement. They have a large research and development team in Germany and the exciting part is many of their field testing and product improvement suggestions come from New Zealand.

Tullochs, the NZ importer of Krone, is now owned by John Tulloch and brother Andrew Tulloch who also runs a large contracting operation in the North Island. It is through this contracting business that Krone Germany put new machines through their paces before releasing them to the market. As Krone said themselves "there is nowhere else in the world that machinery will be put through its paces like NZ".

Here at NC Equipment we are proud to support this brand and will continue to push our technical training and staff development in this product line, so we can strive to continue to offer unparalleled service with supreme products to our end users.

Team Focus

Meet John Bassett

John was born and raised on a farm with his parents and two siblings in the heart of the Cantabrian plains. With an A grade mechanic qualification, he has been involved in sales since he partnered with his brother Gerard to purchase what was then known as North Canterbury Equipment in 1990. John has experienced the business journey to what we see today: NC Equipment. A place Farmers have trusted for over 50 years for quality farm parts and machinery and world class service. With his farming background and years of knowledge in the machinery industry, making sure you get the right equipment to suit your requirements comes second nature.
